

Today's News - December 9, 2003

Sorkin assails the "construction of an architectural zoo on hallowed ground" at Ground Zero. – Was it architectural politics-as-usual? – Affordable housing with heart, history - and bamboo. – Brownfield information seminars tour Canada. – Vancouver's tallest tower promises trees, church restoration, and affordable housing funds. – St. Louis stadium much less promising. – A Venice opera house burned and restored. – Columbus, Indiana, as architectural bastion of starchitects - commissioned long before they were stars. – Urbane India likes "me-spaces" (bathroom doors not necessarily required). – Awards abound for Long Island and New Jersey architects and projects. – 'Tis the season: two book review roundups are enjoyable reads themselves. – HelloWorld project lighting up global landmarks this week (be sure to visit the HelloWorld site - link included).
